“ My dearest kindred spirit, Laura, it has been over 2 years - 2 years and almost 6 months since your passing. I couldn't bear to even think about or begin to accept the loss of you in my life until now, so I haven't had the courage to post here. My heart is broken, shattered into a million pieces - still. In fact, it hurts my heart just as deeply today as it did on the day I lost you. But now, after nearly 2 1/2 years without you, I've finally escaped the safety of my denial enough so that I can make a post here in your memory. I can't even begin to express what a beautiful, profound effect you've had on me in the many years I've known you (which has been most of my life). We grew up together, Laura, and you are a part of almost all of my most treasured memories. Everyone who knew you has spoken of your kindness and generosity, and these positive attributes of yours cannot be overstated. You had a heart of gold, my friend. I'll always remember the day we met with a smile. It was at a huge house party we both attended when we were freshman in high school - only 14 years old. We started talking that day and had an instant and powerful connection that never wavered throughout the next 31 years of true friendship. You have always been the most important friend in my life - my very best friend who was like a sister to me. You were a part of the family that I chose, and you always will be!! I could write books about the fun times we had as well as the difficult times we carried each other through. You used to say to me, "We'll be together through thick and thin." And "I would never want to travel through this life without you by my side." And I absolutely felt the same way. Our friendship stayed real, genuine and true for every second of the 31 years we knew one another. No matter how much time passed between phone calls and visits, we always remained just as close as we were when we lived in the same city and were together nearly every day. Laura, you are the sweetest, most selfless, authentically YOU person I've had the pleasure of knowing in this life. We knew how to make each other laugh like no one else could, and my memories of you will forever be layered with the smiles and tears that make life meaningful. We had our ups and downs just like any close friends do, but the underlying, childlike strength and innocence of our friendship always persevered, and no matter what happened, we both knew that we'd be friends forever. This tribute post could never be complete without mentioning our shared love for cats, over which we immediately bonded. We could talk about cats for hours! It used to crack us up, because nobody else found the topic of our feline companions to be as endlessly interesting or as deeply felt as we did. It's indescribably painful and difficult to imagine living the rest of my life without you. But I know in my heart that you'd want me to keep going - to live my life to the fullest! And that's exactly what I'm going to do I'll miss you every second of every day until we meet again! (And I know we will). I love you. Laura!!

*Sincerely,
~ Leslie*

“ I have so many great memories of Laura. One time when we lived together, she was in the shower, and I was out in the living room. I started singing Karaoke to the unplugged Alice and Chains album to her, and she loved it! So I'd do it from time to time when she was getting ready to go out, and it was hilarious even though it sounds weird. But that's what I loved about her, we both had a weird sense of humor and were able to make each other laugh often, as well as have lots of fun, funny memories. I remember one time I came home and she had cooked a pizza upside down in the oven and I was so mad at her, and she was all like... oh, oh gosh I'm sorry. I wasn't mad for long and we ended up cracking up because how do you cook a pizza upside down in an oven?! I remember her old cat that lived with us too, that thing was like 27 years old! So many more stories I have. Loved her, and love to her family. Thinking of you all during this difficult time.

“ I have so many fond memories of Laura. One night when we were teenagers, we decided to go for a walk in the middle of the night. We weren't up to anything bad, but the police picked us up because apparently there's a curfew for teenagers? It was pretty funny to get driven back to your parent's house in the middle of the night. I also vividly remember that Laura had one of those "magic eye" posters in her bedroom back when those first came out. I stared at that thing forever - lol. We always had fun adventures and she was such a sweet, thoughtful person. I miss her and wish she had been able to find peace in this life. My thoughts are with her family!

“ When I think of Laura, the first thing that comes to mind is kindness. She was always so sweet and had a good heart. I have many fond memories....some very blurry haha....of hanging out and parties in high school with Laura and mutual friends. I can't imagine anyone having a bad thing to say about her. My heart breaks for her family and friends, but she will not be forgotten. I hope her soul is at peace ❤️
