“ I am so saddened and heartbroken to hear of Mark's passing. I worked with him for many years at Thomson Reuters/Truven/IBM. He made work so much fun and I was blessed that we became very good friends. When I hosted our annual IT Department Christmas party (and a few others) he was always the life of the party. We would stay up all night playing Pictionary and would laugh until the early morning hours!

I remember I hosted a Blair Witch Project movie night at our house on a VERY warm fall evening. When he rang the doorbell I opened the door to find Mark dressed in boots, a flannel plaid shirt, a winter hat (as they wore in the movie) and a cross he made out of sticks that he carried around the entire night. After watching the movie he insisted that our party walk in the woods and recreate the movie--we were adults acting like teenagers--that was Mark, always making everyone laugh and ensuring we had fun!

When he brought Tracey to one of our parties, I had never seen him so happy, she was true his soul mate. They truly loved one another and I pray they are laughing and dancing together in heaven. Godspeed, my friend you will be so missed.

To Mark's sons--he spoke so often of you and was so proud of the wonderful men you grew up to be. To Mark's family and loved ones, I hope your wonderful memories of him will give you comfort and peace during this sad and difficult time. You are all in my thoughts and prayers.

“ I am very sad to loose my big brother, Mark. Even though there are 5 years of age difference between us he was loving and made time for me. He took me on a cross country (Michigan to Florida) camping trip to Key West that I will never forget. It was just the two of us and I'm not sure how he pulled that off, but he did and it was memorable. We snorkeled in the Keys, fished and camped like rookies, but it didn't matter. We were kids.

I am heartbroken, but I am most sad that his two sons lost their father.

RIP big brother.

I love you, Mary

“ To my big brother Mark from little brother Jim,

Growing up, I always held you on a high pedestal. You were the older brother who did things I envied—watching you excel on the tennis court, compete on the swim team, dating the high school prom queen and graduating from college made you seem larger than life to me. Looking back, many of my favorite memories have you in them. I will always cherish the weekends we spent camping, the quiet mornings out on the water as we canoed down the Au Sauble River, and those trips birding at Point Pelee, waiting for the spring migrants to arrive. Those are just a few of the memories that I will never forget.

As the years passed, we both focused on raising our respective families, and life naturally got busier. It's true that we didn't always see eye-to-eye on various topics as we got older—we had our differences, as brothers often do. But through all the noise, debates, and distance, one truth never wavered: you were my brother, and I loved you.

I am deeply saddened that your journey ended in such pain, and I wish things could have been different. I hope you have finally found the peace you were searching for. You will be missed, and you will always be remembered.

Rest in peace, brother.
