“ I’m not sure this is the same Rick Seitz that worked for Bank One in Dallas - but if it is - he was a great mentor to me at the bank - I often wondered what happened to him as I couldn’t find him on any social media - anyway RIP.

I had many hopes and dreams as a kid, but only one prayer. That prayer was that my Dad would live a long life. My prayer was answered. I'm thankful that thru Jesus Dad has been reunited with my Mom in Heaven.

I always looked up to my dad. It wasn't until late in his life when he began to shrink that I became physically taller than dad. He taught me many useful and practical lessons working on home and automotive maintenance and repair projects. The most important lessons were learned by watching him live his life. He didn't tell me how to live, he showed me by living his life the way a husband and father should. He always had time for me, I never heard him say "not now". If you want to do any thing to honor my father Richard it would be to spend time with your families.

Richard was a very good brother-in-law. His brother Harvey and I and our children, Brian, Roger and Lisa shared many wonderful family dinners with him and his family. Joan (Seitz) Herring

I got my love of sports from my dad. The first pictures of me not in a crib are of me holding a baseball. He put a regulation basketball backboard and hoop in our basement when I was 5 yrs old for me to practice. A year later the hoop was 10 ft up on the garage roof. I loved practicing basketball outside in all seasons. I also loved playing catch. But baseball takes at least two. If the weather was right when dad got home and I wanted to throw he quickly got ready and we spent time outside. He was a first baseman in high school. I wanted to be like my dad so I had a first baseman glove. We played catch thru out his life, I will miss that.
